INSTRUCTIONS:

- 1. Plan a design for your music case. A blue ballpoint pen works well to draw your design on the case before you start to paint. The blue ink line will be just light enough to see against the black case to trace over with the paint.
- 2. Paint your design as planned. To create a marbleized effect, make close parallel lines with the fabric paint in alternating colors. Next take the wooden toothpick and run lines going the opposite direction through the paint lines. This is a similar technique to cross hatching. You can practice this technique on scrap paper before you decorate the actual case. TIP: Wet paint can be scraped off, then wipe the case off promptly with a wet paper towel to remove any mistakes for a fresh start. Blot case dry with clean paper towel before you paint again.
- 3. Lay your finished case on a flat surface to dry overnight before using your new music case, allowing plenty of time for the thick fabric paint to dry. Keep in mind the paint designs will shrink slightly as they dry.
